INTERVENTION POLICY FOR U. S. ENDS

Right to Intervene in Panama Abandoned Under New Pact

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—In pursuance of President Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy, the United States today agreed to abandon its right to intervention in Panama.

In a treaty signed by the two governments, the United States gave up its right, held since construction of the Panama canal, to maintain "public order" in the cities of Panama, Colon, and the territories and harbor adjacent thereto in case the Republic of Panama should not be in the judgment of the United States, able to maintain such order.

Replaces Old Pact

That right was conferred upon the United States in the 1903 treaty which has governed the relations of the two countries up to the present and which the new pact is designed to replace.

The United States had contended in the past that this clause authorized it to intervene not only in case of actual disorder but also in case of a threatened disorder.

Panama objected, protesting that this specific grant of the right of intervention no longer was warranted under present conditions and was contrary to the non-intervention policy of the Roosevelt administration.

It was recalled that, shortly after President Roosevelt assumed office, the United States formally abrogated the Platt amendment which gave it the right to intervene in the internal affairs of Cuba.

The United States also abrogated the article of the 1903 treaty by which it "guaranteed" and will maintain the independence of the Republic of Panama.

Get Larger Rental

It was eliminated on the contention of Panama that it was in derogation of that government's sovereignty. In its place the new treaty established an agreement between the two governments on a policy of joint responsibility and cooperation in furtherance of their common interests.

Panama also succeeded, through the new treaty, in its efforts to obtain a larger rental on the canal from this government because of the reduction in the dollar's gold weight.

The pact included an arrangement whereby the United States gives Panama the equivalent of $250,000 annually in the old gold dollar.

Under the 1903 treaty, the United States was obligated to pay $250,000 annually "in gold." When the gold payment clause in United States obligations generally was abrogated, Panama refused to accept $250,000 in present-day dollars, contending it would be subjected to loss.

The treaty must be submitted for ratification to the senates of both countries.

County Blooms As Winter Resort As Heat Wave Hits

Orange county today was headed toward becoming a winter resort rather than just a summer playground. Warm weather of the last few days has crowded beaches with swarms of pleasure seekers and bathers.

Yesterday was just like a summer day at the beaches here, both in respect to weather and crowds. A summer volume of business was reported.

Paradoxically, while the beaches enjoyed summer weather, people in the nearby mountains were frolicking in winter snows.

In Santa Ana today the maximum temperature for the morning was reached at 11:30 a. m. when the mercury stood at 84. The minimum today was 67 just after midnight. Yesterday's high was 88 at 1 p. m. and the low was 65 at 5 a. m. Saturday the top mark was 87 at 2 p. m. and the low mark was 53 at 2 a. m.

A big crowd and lots of activity was reported yesterday at Newport Beach by Harry Welch, secretary of the chamber of commerce. Newcomers, he said, are looking for year round homes instead of

Birthday Dirth Hard Knock For Knox Children

There's slim pickings for the four children of Mr. and Mrs. J. Oscar Knox, 1019 Fairview street, Santa Ana, who can hold only two birthday parties at the most every four years.

On Feb. 29, a boy, James Oliver, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Knox at Santa Ana Valley hospital.

His three sisters, Ethel, 18, Gertrude, 13, and Louise, age six, were all born on Sept. 16. Consequently there will be only one birthday celebration each year for the Knox children until another leap year rolls around. Then there'll be two.

Little Robert Walter Dugan, another leap year baby, also will have to wait four years before he can have his first birthday cake. He was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dugan of Orange at the Sargeant Maternity home last Saturday. He is the first grandchild on either the paternal or maternal side of the family. His mother was formerly Miss Ether Lundak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lundak, 1015 Highland street, Santa Ana.

The first leap year baby born in Orange county was a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. William Stokes, 165, Glasser street, Orange. The six-and-one-half pound baby girl was born at Orange county hospital early Saturday morning.

LINER HELD BY STRIKE

'California' Tied Up At San Pedro; Crew Seeks Adjustment

SAN PEDRO, March 2. (AP)—The 33,000 ton liner California was held at its dock today by a strike of 404 members of the crew.

Crew spokesmen said they are demanding the west coast scale of wages instead of the east coast scale under which they have been paid. The west coast scale is approximately $5 monthly higher through the various categories.

Aboard the boat, which was due to sail for New York via the Panama canal at 6 a. m. today, are 441 passengers, including Lord and Lady Charles Cavendish, F. W. Wignall, former high sheriff of Cheshire, England, Dr. Philip Hilkevitch of Denver and Capt. Thompson H. Lyon, recently retired marine superintendent of the International Mercantile Marine Co.

There were no disturbances, crew members agreeing to feed the passengers until a settlement is reached. The passengers impatiently paced the decks and nearby docks as a conference was called between crew representatives and officials of the Panama-Pacific Line.

The California is one of the largest and fastest boats plying between New York and the Pacific coast. It is carrying 9000 tons of freight, including 25,000 boxes of naval oranges.

Securities Act Is Challenged

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—Constitutionality of the 1933 securities act to regulate sale of stocks was challenged in the supreme court today in a brief filed by James Edward Jones, New York dealer in oil securities.

The document, prepared by attorneys including James M. Beck, former solicitor general, and Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state, contended the effect of regulation under the act "is not to prevent fraud but to induce it."

BUILDING STRIKE IN N. Y. SPREADING; 75,000 OUT

COURT RULING HITS TUSTIN CONCERN

San Joaquin Fruit And Investment Company Must Pay $230,000

The United States supreme court at Washington today handed down a ruling which will cost the San Joaquin Fruit and Investment company of Tustin approximately $230,000. This money represents federal taxes paid two years ago under protest. The case has been through the courts and today's ruling is final.

Long Controversy
The case was based on an 18-year-old controversy over tax matters.

The supreme court ruled, according to the Associated Press, that federal taxes on gains resulting from the sale of real estate purchased under option must be assessed on the basis that the property was acquired when paid for and the title transferred and not when the option was given.

Reverses Ruling
The unanimous opinion was delivered by Justice Roberts. It reversed the ruling of the ninth circuit court of appeals in a case involving the San Joaquin Fruit and Investment company of Tustin, Calif.

This company, known before reorganization in 1922 as the San Joaquin Fruit Company, leased 1000 acres of land in Orange county for 10 years, with option to purchase at $200 an acre. The option was exercised and from 1920 to 1928 various tracts of the property were sold.

In determining whether these sales showed a taxable gain, the commissioner of internal revenue used as the cost of the property the $200,000 paid under the option plus cost of improvements made under the lease agreements. He was sustained by the board of tax appeals. They decided the property was acquired on Nov. 30, 1928, when the option was exercised and the property purchased.

Value of Land
The circuit court of appeals held, however, the property was acquired in 1906 when the option was given and the basis for determining gain was the March 1, 1913, value of the property, the date the first income tax took effect. The value of the land, then growing orange and walnut, was estimated by the San Joaquin company at $1,635,000 with $1,360,000 the value of the option.

Police Called as WPA Workers Quit

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—Approximately 2400 men working on the WPA Slauson avenue storm drain project quit work today, and police reserves were rushed to the scene.

Relief officials said they understood about 40 or 50 men marched from one end of the big drainage project to the other, urging the men to drop their tools. Some of the men who refused to quit were made targets for stones hurled by other workers, said relief officials.

Ickes Attacks 'Fascist' Threat

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—Secretary Ickes today linked criticism of the administration's "brain trust" with what he called "Fascist" assertions that certain colleges and universities are favoring the principles of Communism. The interior secretary told the Negro students of Howard university that "the sinister purposes of those who would establish a Fascist state on our free American soil are clear from the very nature of this bold assault upon our institutions of higher learning."

2 Jump to Deaths In Hotel Fire

WARREN, Ohio, March 2. (AP)—Two persons jumped to their deaths today, two were fatally burned and the fate of possibly ten others was unknown as fire of undetermined origin raged in the three story Warren hotel, erected nearly 40 years ago.

Seven others, overcome by smoke, were taken to a hospital. M. T. Smith, hotel manager, said ten others might be trapped in their rooms.

One of the dead was tentatively identified as Jack Meyers, a middle-aged resident of the hotel.

NEW AAA IS APPROVED

$500,000,000 Program Is Launched As FDR Signs Measure

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—High AAA officials packed their bags today to speed into the field and launch the $500,000,000 soil conservation-subsidy bill which President Roosevelt's signature has enacted into law.

The President announced yesterday that he had signed the successor to AAA late Saturday night, 55 days after the supreme court struck down the old farm program.

"I do not regard this farm act as a panacea or as a final plan," he said. "Rather, I consider it a new basis to build and improve upon, as experience discloses its points of weakness and of strength."

"Aiming at justice for agriculture and self-interest for the nation, the plan seeks to salvage and conserve the greatest values in human life and resources with which this nation is endowed," he said.

The law authorizes $500,000,000 in subsidies to farmers annually to withdraw land from commercial crop production and use it for soil building growths or other "economic" purposes. The money will be paid either directly to farmers or through states which set up approved conservation programs.

AAA officials said a major aim will be to take 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres out of commercial crop production in 1936.

Claim 'Confession' In Mooney Case

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2. (AP)—A surprise witness at the Thomas J. Mooney habeas corpus hearing today declared he knew Mooney was innocent of the Preparedness day bombing in 1916 because he knew the man who admitted doing the job. He said it was Joe Daugherty, formerly of Amarillo, Tex., who is now dead.

Marvel of Plastic Surgery Restores Woman's Beauty

(Copyright, 1936, by Daily News Co., Ltd.)
SAN FRANCISCO, March 2.—A few weeks ago a 36-year-old woman held a mirror in one hand—and a box of strong sleeping powders in the other.

A small overdose out of the box, and she would never again have to behold what the mirror revealed so pitilessly.

"I had fully intended to commit suicide," Aimee La Marr said today. "Life didn't seem worth the living. My looks were gone. If they had disappeared gradually with the years I wouldn't have been minded."

Changes Overnight
"But to see myself change practically overnight from a blooming young woman to a hag—I just couldn't stand it."

A former hope stayed the woman's self-destructive hand. She was an ardent movie fan, had heard of the miracles of plastic surgery performed on Hollywood actors and actresses, making ageing men and women of 60 look like 30.

Feed, Seed Loan Quiz Is Slated

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—The senate agriculture committee decided today to investigate adequacy of the $30,000,000 President Roosevelt has promised to make available for 1936 seed and feed loans before attempting to override the veto of a $50,000,000 authorization.

Members came out of the meeting with a statement that Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, had insufficient votes to take the vetoed bill to the floor for a vote.

LONDON, March 2. (AP)—Laura La Plante, American film actress and wife of Irving Asher, director of Warner Brothers studio, gave birth to a daughter at a London nursing home today.

The blonde screen actress was married to the London movie executive June 19, 1934 at Paris in the presence of James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, and his wife, the former Betty Compton.

TRAIN CRASH KILLS 13

REVELSTOCK, B. C., March 2. (AP)—Thirteen men were killed and eight injured today when the tender of a locomotive which they were placing back on the track rolled against the locomotive and crushed the working crew.

The accident occurred at 3:20 a. m. just east of Downie, about 30 miles east of here on the main line of the Canadian Pacific, railway officials reported.

The dead were Telegraph Operator J. Roland and Trainman H. L. Haug, four laborers and one other man, whose names were not immediately available.

Epic 'Bolter' Back On Delegation

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—John Packard, an Epic-Democrat, announced today he has been reappointed to the California delegation to the national Democratic convention.

Packard was one of 10 Epic sympathizers who "bolted" the compromise ticket announced by Postmaster General Farley.

"At the time he withdrew from the delegation I took the position it was a major political blunder," said Packard.

"I still hold the same ideas on production-for-use, but I believe that the re-election of President Roosevelt is of paramount importance."

U. S. SEEKING HUGE LOAN

More Than One Billion Dollars Requested; Peace-Time Record

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—A new public loan of $1,809,000,000 was sought today by the treasury.

The financing operations for March 15, announced yesterday by Secretary Morgenthau, include $800,000,000 to supplement cash reserve for relief, farm and bonus payments.

Morgenthau declared he never had seen such "enthusiasm" for federal obligations as there is at present and indicated quick absorption of the new issue is anticipated.

The treasury specifically asked for $1,250,000,000 in cash, the largest amount sought since war-time financial operations. Of this amount, $800,000,000 is intended for the repayment of short term loans due March 16. Another $550,000,000 security issue was offered to retire notes maturing April 15.

Hence, between March 16 and April 15, the gross public debt will be about $31,859,000,000, a new all time peak. Repayment of the maturing loans April 15 will lower the figure to $31,300,000,000.

Frost Station Shut, Winter Ends

UPLAND, March 2. (AP)—Roy J. Rogers closed his frost forecasting station here and moved to Medford, Ore., to aid the deciduous fruit growers there. Operating for the citrus growers here he found the winter one of the mildest in many years and figured no further damaging frost probable.

Sharp Sword, Hari-Kiri, Bring 'Honorable Death'

TOKYO, March 2. (AP)—The Japanese government disclosed today how one of the army officers who engaged in the assassination plot of last week and his wife went to "honorable deaths."

Lieut. Kenkichi Aoshima and his wife committed hara-kiri in the best room of their home in Tokyo Saturday morning.

They followed the ritual of the old Samurai.

First they purified themselves with cold water. He put on a full dress uniform; she donned a pure white silk kimono.

They swept the best room of their home and placed fresh flowers in the household sanctuary.

WALL STREET ONLY AREA SPARED

La Guardia Proclaims 'Emergency'; Service In Stores Menaced

NEW YORK, March 2. (AP)—Mayor La Guardia today proclaimed an emergency existed in the building employees' strike which spread rapidly through Manhattan's residential and business sections. An official said 75,000 men had walked out or would before tonight.

As the walkout spread shortly after noon through the crowded midtown business and garment area, the mayor ordered city departments to arrange for deputization of all persons needed to provide building service as required by health and safety standards.

Municipal employees encompassed by the proclamation total more than 40,000.

Mart Street Spared
When he took the action, the only buildings in which a walkout had not been ordered were the skyscrapers in the financial district.

Elevator men, janitors and their employees were ordered out of all buildings north of 14th street by J. L. Bambrick, president of the Building Service Employees' Union.

By tonight, Bambrick declared, the strike would be extended to the Wall street financial district.

There was sharp disagreement over the number of men who actually had left their jobs.

Says 75,000 Men Idle
Bambrick asserted that before the end of the day 6000 buildings would be affected, with 75,000 men idle. Department stores as well as apartments and office buildings, he declared, would be without service.

William D. Rawlins, secretary of the realty advisory board, said a police estimate of 270 buildings affected on the upper west side was "tremendously exaggerated," and that Bambrick's claim of 1400 buildings already closed was "too impossible to mention."

Not more than 75 buildings on Riverside drive and the neighboring west side region have lost their employees, Rawlins said. In the Bronx, he added, "there might possibly be 20 or even the police figure of 30."

Glab Murder Trial Starts Today

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—A red-headed widow, Mrs. Hazel Glab, went on trial today charged with the fatal shooting nearly eight years ago of her husband, John I. Glab.

The prosecution asked prospective jurors if they would "let the sex of the defendant stand in the way of their infliction upon her of the death penalty" should she be found guilty.

Mrs. Glab was questioned by police after the slaying, June 18, 1928, of Glab, former Cicero, Ill., druggist, in the rear of the couple's home here.

Merriam Recall Move to Start

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—Harry Drummond, chairman of a group called the National Democratic Club of California, said today it would start the circulation of recall petitions against Gov. Frank E. Merriam this week.

Drummond said offices for the campaign would be opened in every county in the state.

Sharp Sword, Hari-Kiri, Bring 'Honorable Death'

Mrs. Aoshima wrote a letter to her father, also an army officer, and her mother, saying: "The day has now come when I must act as a soldier's wife should."

Then, with prayers, the lieutenant knelt, with a short sword gripped in his two hands. He plunged the point of the sword into the left side of his abdomen and drew it across to the right. Still kneeling, despite the agony of pain, he slashed his throat and fell forward on his face.

Mrs. Aoshima fell forward on the sword, severing an artery.

Both were found lying on their faces, the "honorable" position of death.

IL DUCE READY FOR PEACE AS OIL EMBARGO IS THREATENED

EDEN OFFERS PENALTY TO LEAGUE

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
GENEVA, March 2. — Great Britain offered today to place an embargo against further oil shipments to Italy provided all other members of the League do the same, and the League of Nations council "committee of 13" was ordered to discuss the possibility of conciliating the Italo-Ethiopian war.
The "committee of 13" is really the entire league council with Italy excluded. It will be convened tomorrow.
Eden Makes Offer
Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, made the British offer of an embargo at a meeting of the "committee of 13" entrusted with the application of sanctions against Italy for her war with Ethiopia.
Earlier, a Little Entente spokesman announced today receipt of information that Italy's domestic economic situation was growing increasingly worse under sanctions and that Premier Mussolini probably would be disposed to negotiate peace.
The spokesman for the Little Entente said information to Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, indicating the pressure of the present arms, financial and economic sanctions on Italy, made it likely that a peace "giving Italy satisfaction" would be accepted by Il Duce.

ITALY READY FOR 'ADEQUATE PEACE'
ROME, March 2. (AP) — An informed quarters spokesman said today Italy was ready to entertain proposals of peace, but the reception accorded them would depend upon their "adequacy."
With this revelation, Italian leaders hinted the European situation had reached a turning point.
"We shall never refuse to consider an initiative toward peace, from whatever direction it comes. But it must take into account our necessities for defense and security, already amply stated, our unrenounceable right to expansion, sanctioned by treaties and authoritatively recognized, and our sacrifices," a high source said.

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—The Rev. Father William S. Kress, M. M., 73, superior of Maryknoll fathers of Los Angeles, died yesterday at St. Vincent's hospital after nearly a half century of service as a priest. He formerly was a missionary in China.

NEW LEADER IS SOUGHT FOR JAPS

TOKYO, March 2. (AP) — Three distinguished near-victims of assassination in Tokyo's short-lived army insurrection met at the imperial palace today, with other leaders of the empire, seeking a man brave and powerful enough to head the government.
Premier Keisuke Okada, whose place before the assassins was taken by his brother-in-law, Prince Kimmochi Saionji, who fled safely from an attack, and Count Nobuaki Makino, former Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, attended the council of state.
Their principal task, with Okada remaining as premier until his successor may be chosen, was to restore national unity. Shaken by the tragedies of last week when rebellious soldiers slew four persons and held government centers for four days before capitulating to the imperial army.
Prince Saionji, 97-year-old Genro, or elder statesman, showed evidences of his age and the strain of his recent flight from his home at Okitsu when he arrived late today in the capital under heavy police guard, to advise on choice of a new premier.
Known deaths in the rebellion were Finance Minister Takahashi, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal Viscount Makoto Saito, Gen. Jotaro Watanabe, chief of military education, and Col. Denzo Matsuo, brother-in-law and secretary of Okada, who were assassinated.
In addition to the five policemen who were killed, three rebels committed suicide. The wife of one rebel died with her husband.

MOONLIGHT NILE ROMANCES BANNED BY EGYPTIAN LAW

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt may be a land of romance in fiction, but lovers who fall under its spell may find themselves fined or imprisoned.
Police in Cairo and Alexandria enforce a law which forbids "persons of opposite sex to kiss on public thoroughfares or public property."
One young man, seeking to escape the penalty for kissing his girl on the banks of the Nile one moonlit night, tried to bribe a policeman and was jailed for four days without bail.
Another policeman found that the officer actually had taken six piastres from the youth. The offending officer was dropped from the force and also given a jail sentence.

'Newsie' Out $23, Asks Aid of Finder of Money

Collections were good on Saturday. The extra day in the year was providing customers of Jimmy Hehn, newsboy, with more time to pay their newspaper subscription bills.
He hurried along on his bike, eager to get through early, thoughts on the beach or a ball game. He gave his pocket where he'd put the money, a reassuring pat. Suddenly he blanched. The $23 he'd collected was gone.
Terrified, he retraced his course. Nowhere could he find the $10 bill and $13 greenbacks which he had crumpled into his pocket and which evidently had fallen out as he bobbed along.
"It will take me a long time to get together enough pennies to pay back that money," the 13-year-old newsie said sorrowfully today. He's appealing to the person who found the money to call at the Los Angeles Examiner agency, telephone 828.

PARK OPTION UP AGAIN

A decision on the proposed purchase of a 20-acre park site at Washington avenue and Flower street may be made tonight by the city council. The present option on the property expires tomorrow.
The matter has been in the air for several weeks pending definite information from Washington about a project for an armory, which the council hoped to locate on the park property if it was bought. Nothing new has developed in the armory situation, however.
It is regarded as doubtful that the council would wish to continue the option any longer in case the property is not purchased.

GERRARD'S KIN PASSES AWAY

A. W. Gerrard, of 2422 Heliotrope Drive, and Hugh Gerrard, of 2006 Victoria Drive, received word today of the death of their sister, Mrs. W. E. Moore, of Riverside. Mrs. W. E. Moore, formerly Mrs. W. E. Moore, of Riverside, had been ill for some time. Mrs. Moore was known to a large number of Santa Ana residents, as she was a frequent visitor here. Mrs. A. W. Gerrard went to Riverside this morning in response to the message announcing her passing.

2 NAMED BY CHURCHES IN GROWERS TODAY

Two new members were selected today for the board of directors of the Orange County Vegetable association at its annual meeting in the city council chambers. Because of the lack of a quorum, no attempt was made to elect new officers, and it is possible that the present group will serve for another year.
However, the San Bernardino and Riverside county groups expressed the desire to suggest their representatives on the board, naming E. W. Soper and Jacob Rathgeber. These men will be seated on the board at its next meeting. It is understood other members of the present board wish to resign. The Imperial county group today announced that it will make its selection of a board member later.
C. J. Cogan, secretary, presided at today's meeting in the absence of Clarence Brown, president. Mr. Cogan reported that the organization now has 413 members, with an estimated production of 50,000 tons of tomatoes.
Roland D. Flaherty, farm bureau secretary, made a brief talk on the status of the association.

NEW RECORDER IN OFFICE

The first official act of County Recorder Fred Sidebottom, on taking office this morning, was to re-appoint all deputies employed in the office under the regime of Miss Justine Whitney, who resigned following her conviction on charges of misdemeanor in office. Mr. Sidebottom also placed the office of recorder on a "strictly cash" basis. All accounts will be settled by cash at the time of filing, the new recorder said, and all payments will be made each night to the county treasurer.
Those re-appointed today included Ruby McFarland, chief deputy recorder; Nellie Colomine, Emma C. Van Dusen, Neta Kootz, Malthe Crowell, R. C. Mize and Ruth Crosby, deputies.

PERMIT TOTAL SHOWS DROP

The 82 building permits issued last month by City Building Inspector Sam Preble totaled $52,558, bringing the totals for the year to 142 permits with a valuation of $120,220. Although the total for February is slightly less than that of February of last year, it is greater than any other February since 1933.
Among the permits granted last month, there were six for the construction of new residences totaling $22,000 in valuation. There were 17 permits granted for alterations to private residences and seven for alterations to business buildings totaling $9462 in valuation. There were 35 permits to re-roof granted with a valuation of $3930.

FREE EMPLOYE OF TURF CO.

Al Zeitman, Los Angeles, scheduled to appear with Waldo Collins, Santa Ana, tomorrow before Justice of the Peace K. E. Morrison in answer to charges of violation of state laws governing book-making, was free today under $2500 bond. Bail was posted late Saturday by a Los Angeles bonding firm.
Sheriff Logan Jackson announced today that officers are still searching for eight others allegedly connected with the Continental Turf agency, raided by county officers last Thursday. One of the men wanted by officers is a resident of Santa Ana, the others are believed to be from outside of Orange county.

Originally scheduled to begin Feb. 24, the ceremonies will not start until the middle of next September.
The 50-year-old Nizam has a fortune estimated at $250,000,000 in gold and $2,000,000,000 in jewels.

SENATOR BORAH SEEKS RAYMER

Contrary to the generally expressed belief that Senator William E. Borah will not conduct a campaign in California, it was learned today that he had expressed a desire to have his old friend, George Raymer, Santa Ana, run for election as a delegate to the national Republican convention. Mr. Raymer, when asked about the matter today, said that he had known Senator Borah several years ago and had at one time worked for him.
"I might run for election to the convention," Mr. Raymer said. "I have received an invitation to do so in a roundabout manner, and of course, if I am elected I will support Senator Borah."

Mantz Denies Earhart Affair

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—A. Paul Mantz, flyer and aviation expert, testified today in his contested divorce suit, he never was alone in his home with Amelia Earhart, touse-headed aviatrix.
"I never ate a meal with her alone," Mantz said. "There was always someone else present." Testimony had previously been introduced that Miss Earhart and her husband had been frequent visitors at the Mantz home, and that "Mrs. Putnam" had visited the home in Mrs. Mantz's absence.

FHA CHANGES BELL PRAISES CHIEF HERE ADVERTISING

G. F. Rinehart of Glendora today took over this territory as field representative for the Federal Housing administration. Mr. Rinehart succeeds James H. Berry, who has been transferred.

Mr. Rinehart will be in Santa Ana each Monday for consultation with persons interested in securing loans through the FHA for new construction or repairing old structures. He will maintain offices at the Santa Ana hotel, where all Orange county persons will be able to contact him between 11:15 a. m. and 3 p. m. each Monday.

At 11 a. m. each Monday Mr. Rinehart will broadcast information about the FHA over KVOE, Santa Ana radio station.

Mr. Rinehart's territory extends from the south Los Angeles county line to San Pedro, and east to the state line. Mr. Berry has been transferred to a territory including Pasadena, Glendale and Burbank.

FHA commitments for loans in Santa Ana so far amount to $93,230, Mr. Rinehart said today. Figures show that about five houses have been built on private capital to date. The FHA program has been a great stimulus to private capital in the building industry.

More About New Face

that Miss LaMarr was willing to gamble her life against a plastic surgeon's skill, and relieve him of every responsibility in an attempt to restore her beauty.

From all corners of the nation, from Denver, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Philadelphia and New York, surgeons wrote offering to operate on her, if she could pay the transportation fee.

But Miss LaMarr had less than $5, not even enough to take her to Los Angeles.

Through the San Francisco News a San Francisco plastic surgeon, one of the most famous in the West and noted for face lifting operations on prominent society women, stars of the stage and screen, offered to perform the operation without charge.

A local hospital offered her free care both for the operation and during convalescence, again through the News. She eagerly agreed.

Bandaged Two Weeks

The operation lasted five and one-half hours. Convalescence, which was more painful than the actual operation, continued for two weeks. Then the bandages came off.

Her face shone forth, fresh and firm as that of a girl in her twenties. Her own friends did not recognize her.

When the day for the operation arrived, Miss LaMarr packed her one other dress and a few belongings into a battered black handbag, and waited at the crossroads outside Santa Ana for the car that was to bring her to the city—and rejuvenation.

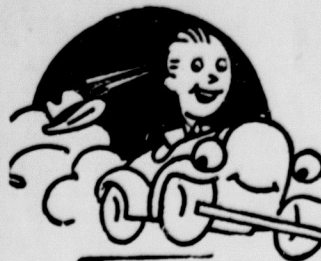

Hurt to Smile

She arrived, a shy, nervous figure, trembling with excitement, weathervane smiles.

"It actually hurts my face muscles to smile so much," she sighed. "I haven't smiled in years."

Alma La Marr was born on her father's ranch in the Santa Clara valley. Except for rare, one-night trips, she has never left the valley. She can ride everything from a bucking colt

Brick Dust

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By I. N. (BRICK) GAINES

YOU KNOW, this county editoring isn't so bad, after all. Take Saturday, for instance.

Saturday, you'll remember, was a warm, sunny day. Breezes blew and Roch Bradshaw wrote fishing stories.

It seems to be a failing of county editors, especially red-headed ones, that, when sunny breezes blow and others write fishing stories, they want to travel.

Now, so, shortly after noon, The Boss asked where I was going for the afternoon—sorta checking up, you might call it.

"There's a story down at Newport, a good story," I told him. "I might be able to get it, and I might not, but I'll try."

So, we parted company, and I left for Newport, after that story.

Traveling by the Santa Ana County club, looked like everyone in the county was playing golf. Little further along, and there was Costa Mesa, but the town was quiet. Nobody was on the streets, and there wasn't a story in sight.

At Newport Beach, City Clerk Frank Rinehart wasn't in the city hall, and Sam Meyer wasn't in his publishing house. So I went to Balboa. There, Frank Crocker, the fire chief, wasn't in sight, and neither was Harry Welch, so I just started aimlessly down the highway.

From the back of the car came queer noises. "Pa-a-t! Hey!" You'll admit that those are queer noises to come from the back of the car when no one's there, so I looked back, and there was an old friend, my fishing pole.

Now, you'll say, "He resisted temptation, however, and went on looking for that good story at Newport!" This is just what I didn't do. I tore out for the other side of the bay, where I knew a boating enthusiast—he says if I give him any publicity, I can't go fishing any more—and he was just leaving for a spin down toward Laguna.

So I went boating. And fishing, a bit. And there wasn't any big story from Newport. Or any fish.

But it was fun, and I'll bet The Boss won't be very mad.

Don White, down at Laguna, sends us a story about arrival of spring in Laguna.

As there should be with the arrival of spring, a round, yellow moon was shining the other night, he reports. Everyone knows the effect of such a moon on people—and dogs. This story is about dogs.

Because the moon affected two dogs in the same manner. They howled at it.

And people couldn't sleep. That made 'em mad, so they called the cops.

Upon investigating the howling, the Laguna police force advised that it was a queer coincidence—both dogs belonged to hotel owners. Both hotel owners took their serenading pets inside, and the householders who didn't like to hear springtime heralded in that manner went back to their beds.

Who said times are bad? At Laguna, officials report the roariest sort of a building boom. Everybody in town, with a few outsiders thrown in, is building a new house. Or a store.

At Olive, folks are about to start working for a new community center—auditorium building, basketball court, tennis courts, and such. They're even going to vote a bond issue, "he said. They're enthusiastic over the idea.

Also, at Westminster, folks are getting excited over spending a little for a recreation center. Old Man WPA is going to help out with expenses, if folks in the community are agreeable.

Lots of school building work has started all over the county. Folks in Placentia are thinking about a bond election for $75,000 to install their own water plant. If the wind doesn't blow all oranges from the trees, ranchers are hopeful of a pocket-filling year with their citrus products.

He's Jimmie Branninger, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Branninger, who operate the Westminster Gazette.

Jimmie, we hear, would rather sit down in front of his dad's linotype than skate with other kids. In effect, he'd rather be punching keys instead of noses.

He knows all characters and letters on the complicated machine and can set a line perfectly, according to his parents.

Won't he be a help to dad in a couple of years?

Old Houses, Young People, Magnetic Point, Artists, In Laguna 'Coastlines'

By McDONALD WHITE

Never knew until recently that Bill Spurgeon used to own the property now occupied by Los Ondas cafe. Sold it after his house burned down. That was ten or more years ago. It was a windless night, he said, and the flames went straight up. Otherwise the whole row of houses along the board walk might have gone up in smoke. Including the old Lowe place, the Baker's, and others. . . . Who remembers when the little red house stood there on the corner? Later a French woman converted it into a restaurant and served luscious broiled lobsters with lots of butter and a stack of French-fried potatoes on the side. All with a drizzling, winter rain outside, and it so cozy and warm inside. That house had a versatile and worthwhile career, and many remember the still night it burned to the ground.

The H. H. Henshaw place on High drive. Here, if you find either Mr. or Mrs. Henshaw at home and not too busy, and you say that you would like to sit for a few minutes in their summer house, they might oblige. Word got around that many of the neighbors are in the habit of sitting in this palm-thatched spot for relaxation. Rumor has it that it is over a magnetic point, perhaps a heavy mineral deposit in the earth. And still

NEW FEATURE JOINS KVOE PROGRAMS

Program officials of KVOE announce that the famous "Sons of the Pioneers" quartet will be heard in their equally famous harmonizations and arrangements of favorite songs on the local radio station every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 6:45 to 7 p. m. beginning tomorrow.

Known from coast to coast for their popular programs, this group will add another feature program to the many outstanding presentations now on KVOE.

Nolan Gained Fame
Chief Pioneer Bob Nolan of the quartet gained national recognition with the publishing of his first song: "Tumbling Tumbleweeds."

This thrice-weekly program will find favor with a large number of listeners who are already familiar with the "Sons of the Pioneers" and others who will find their presentations to be of unusually high entertainment value, KVOE believes.

Offering a bit of a moral in a psychological way with the admonition: "Guard against the aggression of your own troubles and never succumb to the evil of self-pity," tonight's "Calling All Cars!" broadcast from KVOE at 7:30 will comprise another factual dramatization under the title of "Self-made Murderer."

One Day—
The story is that of 55-year-old John Hoppel, a small wispy of a man who was, to the casual observer, an "Eric Milquetoast" of sorts. To his wife, Rose Hoppel, he was something different: a dour, complaining fellow who, perhaps by reason of his unemployment, indulged in self-pity to such a degree that he persuaded himself he was the most nagged husband in all the world.

One day . . . but that would be telling! Tonight's rapidly moving dramatization of verified facts will tell of the astounding things which resulted and eventually led to the end of the trail: San Quentin.

In the Musical Moments quarter-hour treat of familiar songs and rhythms beginning at 7 o'clock tonight, the Sterling male chorus of eight voices will shine in "Radio or Shiner" from the musical comedy of the same name, and will also feature their harmonization of the beautiful ballad, "Who Is Sylvia."

The hit tunes of the day: "Cling to Me," "I Don't Know Your Name," "Gotta Go to Work Again" and "Gotta Go to Work Again" as played by Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra, will be heard in a feature in this program at 6:45 o'clock tonight.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

WITH THE regularity of the seasons come the television stories. Whenever spring settles too heavily on our shoulders or the sunshine calls or we've just run out of things to say, all your troubled newshawk has to do is blindly reach into the mail box and pull out something like—

"Television is just around the corner!"
This time we drew—"The first field tests of television by the Radio Corporation of America will begin in a month or two."

Begin, yes, but it is emphasized that the experimental tests do not mean a regular television service is at hand.

While we sit back and take it easy, allow the following tidbits from the annual RCA report to stockholders to tell the story:

"THE NEW YORK area has been selected as the one in which the experimental field tests will be conducted. The television transmitter is located on the Empire State building, and test receivers will be operated by technical personnel of the organization throughout this area."

The transmitter will be connected by radio with the television studio, now under construction in the NBC plant, RCA building, in Radio City, New York. The installation is practically complete, and within a month or two the first tests should commence.

IT WILL BE necessary to coordinate a number of important elements before television on a regular basis of service can be established. For example, it will have to be determined how the transmitter can send good television pictures; also with what consistency and regularity pictures may be transmitted with the system in its present state of development. We must investigate and define the possibilities of the television camera for indoor and outdoor pick-up.

"THESE ARE THE essential pioneering stages in the development of an art in which considerable experiments must be made for research before returns can be expected. As the work goes on, it may be necessary to return to the laboratory, from time to time, to seek the solution to practical problems encountered in the field."

"But the RCA experimental television project is proceeding on schedule, and your management is confident that it will continue to progress at an encouraging rate."

"IT IS, HOWEVER, evident that, regardless of the progress in this direction, the present system of sound broadcasting remains the fundamental service of radio communication to the home. While television promises to supplement the present service of broadcasting by adding sight to sound, it will not supplant or diminish the importance and usefulness of broadcasting by sound."

Weather Man to Blame for Fine

SANTA CLARA, March 2. (AP)—The weather man made John R. Watson of Stockton a not too accurate observer and cost him a $10 fine.

Being stored for use in Santa Ana and other Southern California cities of the Metropolitan water district, water collected behind Boulder dam already constitutes the world's largest artificial lake. It was revealed today in figures compiled under the direction of General Manager F. E. Weymouth of the water district.

This rank has been attained by the lake, it is pointed out, despite the fact that it is now less than 15 per cent of its ultimate size.

Water stored behind the dam will be released as needed and allowed to flow 150 miles downstream to Parker dam where it will be diverted into the aqueduct and carried west across the state to the member cities of the Metropolitan water district.

According to the results of preliminary snow surveys which have been made in the upper Colorado river watershed, a vast increase in the size of the reservoir may be anticipated during the coming spring and early summer. The reservoir now contains 5,794,000 acre feet of water.

'BAD' CRIMES DECREASING

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—The justice department reported today "a decrease of serious crimes during the past three years."

Murders, assault, auto thefts and robberies all declined, according to statistics compiled by the bureau of investigation from reports of 74 big-city police headquarters.

Auto thefts dropped from 78,727 in 1933 to 62,406 in 1935.

A "heartening" decrease in robberies was reported from 20,025 in 1933 to 14,248 in 1935.

Murders decreased from 1773 in 1933 to 1455 in 1935. Aggravated assault dropped from 12,104 to 10,765, while burglaries declined from 87,846 to 76,001.

About 650,000 farmers own stock in federal land banks through their farm loan associations, while more than 200,000 farmers are connected with production credit associations.

FARM BUREAU CHARTS INCREASE IN ORANGE COUNTY TAX BILL

REPORT TELLS BIG GAIN IN SPENDING

Cross-Section Given of Changes in Government Costs Since 1931

During the past year assessed valuations in Orange county increased by 36 per cent, while at the same time the total tax bill for the county showed a jump of 8 per cent.

These figures, representing a net increase in county spending and county taxes of 17.7 per cent, were brought out today in an analysis of the tax bills of 38 individual pieces of property, located to form a cross-section of Orange county, prepared by the Orange county farm bureau.

Study of Changes

The purpose of the study was to compile data from which the bureau could get a cross-section view of the changes that have taken place in county taxation and government costs since the high point of taxation in Orange county in 1931-1932.

The bureau is launching with this report the next phase of its fight to lower government costs and tax bills, which it opened when it recently urged the board of supervisors to consolidate government offices wherever possible, and to otherwise reduce expenses.

Characterizing the 17.7 per cent increase as "unjustifiable," the bureau report stated that since the return of public utilities taxes to the county rolls, the county's assessed property increased in value to 9.7 per cent. Thus, it continues, if expenditures had remained on a level commensurate with 1934, taxes should have been decreased by the same percentage, viz., 9.7 per cent.

The 38 pieces of property on which the table was based are divided among the supervisorial districts as follows: first, five pieces; second, nine pieces; third, 10 pieces; fourth, five pieces, and fifth, nine pieces. These properties paid taxes in 22 special districts in addition to the support of general county and three cities, making in all 26 separate units of government.

270 Agencies

The report further showed that there are 270 agencies of government drawing from the tax rolls in Orange county, including 44 elementary school districts, 12 high school districts, 14 school library districts, 13 maintenance and light districts, 24 road districts, 36 acquisition and improvement districts, and 22 orange improvement districts. The bureau claims many of these government agencies overlap in functions and substantiate the bureau's contention that many should be consolidated.

The total assessed valuation of the 38 pieces of property for 1935-1936 is shown as $609,750, as compared to a total valuation for 1934-1935 of $448,030. The increase was caused by the addition of the public utilities to the county's tax rolls, adding to the county a large assessed valuation of $16,955, 310.

Taking the 38 pieces of property as a fair sample of the whole, the increase since 1931-1932 was 10 per cent, and since the year previous, 36 per cent making the total tax for which the property is liable $17,620.14. The tax bill itself decreased 28 per cent in the past five years, but in the last year increased 8 per cent over the year previous.

Of the entire tax bill, $4,219.28, or 23 per cent, went to the maintenance of county government; $7,666.83, or 43 per cent, went to the support of schools; $2,315.84, or 13 per cent, went to special districts, and $3,427.19 or 18 per cent, went to cities.

Decrease Shown

Amounts assessed for each of the districts show a decrease by percentage, with the exception of special districts, which increased 2 per cent in the past year.

However, it was brought out, the decrease shown of 2 per cent for county government, 3 per cent for schools, and 1 per cent for cities, actually means that the amounts the districts received were augmented, as the total increase in valuation was 9.7 per cent during the year.

Those figures, in their essence, represent what has happened to the county tax bill during the past years. The farm bureau is presenting them without comment, believing that the facts speak for themselves. The first step in tax reduction, it believes, is in the consolidation of the county government and the elimination of overlapping functions of government.

The bureau plans to be in the van of the fight for lower taxes.

BANKERS ARE WARNED IN TALK HERE

Crowd Hears Judge Talk On Pension Plan in Townsend Hall

By WALTER R. ROBB

District Townsend Manager

Five hundred Townsend followers heard Judge M. C. Summers deliver a remarkable address Saturday night in Townsend hall, Santa Ana. Judge Summers is widely known as a writer on economic law and as the founder of the court of Geneva sessions of St. Louis, Mo., where he was formerly district attorney.

The meeting was called to order by C. W. Riggie, Rev. R. F. Russell of Santa Ana pronounced the benediction and then Hurd's orchestra composed of Earl Lentz, Carl Durall, O. A. Sanders, Jim Carlson and Haywood Patterson entertained the crowd with a concert.

Chairman Riggie then introduced State Area Manager Ted E. Felt who in turn presented Judge Summers.

Judge Summers invited any present who had "any hard nuts to crack" in connection with the Townsend plan to state them and from over the audience in rapid fire order came question after question which he answered with unusual dispatch and good humor.

Most Important Books

Holding a copy of "The Federal Reserve Banking Laws" in one hand and in the other hand a copy of "The Townsend Plan Book," Judge Summers dramatically said "Outside of the Bible these two books are the most important in the world to this audience."

"Tell your local banker" said he, "the quicker they help put the Townsend Plan into effect the longer they will be in the banking business." He pointed out already private bankers are beginning to sense a danger to their independent institutions resultant of the recent banking act legislated into law with the consent and help of the present administration.

He pointed out that the nation's unemployment and relief problems are all the result of "faulty money circulation." He cited the remedy which the Townsend plan would be for the nation's ills showing how the rising volume of business resulting from the Townsend annuities would enable private business to shoulder the business of furnishing employment instead of the government. "The public debt," he said, would immediately begin to reduce in its volume instead of pyramiding into terrifying proportions.

No Ice Water

"If any doctor of medicine would tell any of you people that he was going to perform an operation upon you by extracting your blood from your body and place in its stead ice water, you would say to him—not on me. You people know there is no substitute for blood in the human body and neither is there for money in the body economic," he said. "The nation is suffering from pernicious anemia, but the Townsend plan of money circulation will bring a new and needed economic health to the nation."

Answering a question propounded from the audience, "why the $200 per month Judge Summers explained it was not a guess at amount but rather was the result of long and scientific study. He pointed out that the Townsend plan is primarily a recovery plan and that the $200 per month spending power of each Townsend annuitant would result in such business acceleration as would furnish re-employment to the now younger unemployed.

VETS ASK MILLION DOLLARS MONTHLY IN HOME LOANS

SACRAMENTO, March 2.—A new chapter in the history of the veterans' welfare board is being written with home and farm purchase loans being made to California war veterans at the rate of $1,000,000 a month and with applications for loans rapidly nearing the exhaustion point.

At the present time the board is in the 56,000 application series, according to Chairman Thomas M. Foley. This indicates that within a short time applicants for loans may be able to file, be interviewed and have their purchase and selection certificates issued all within a period of 60 days.

In arriving at the present turning point in the board's history, approximately $60,000,000 has been loaned out over a period of more than a decade to California veterans. The money was provided by a series of bond issues.

CAMPAIGN IS STARTED BY FARLEY

Hurries East to Lead In Move to Support Delegate Policy

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—Primary tangles and intra-party strife over strategy featured the political picture today as the dates for the forthcoming presidential ballots drew nearer.

Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic national committee hastened to New England for parleys and speeches designed to stop movements in New Hampshire and Massachusetts to James Farley.

Farley's entrance into New England today signaled the start of his nationwide campaign to send to the convention only delegates pledged to President Roosevelt. In Boston he planned to confer with Gov. James M. Curley and Chairman Joseph McGrath of the state committee. He will address the Young Democrats of New Hampshire at Manchester tonight and his speech will be broadcast.

New Hampshire will elect its delegates a week from tomorrow in the first such primary in the nation. John S. Hurley, a former Roosevelt man, is among the four who have filed as pledged delegates. He declared the New Deal policies "are fraught with danger."

Coughlin Tells Plans

Father Coughlin, in last night's broadcast from Detroit, declared that in all but two of the 24 congressional districts in Ohio, the union will "endorse either a Republican or a Democrat on the grounds that such a candidate has publicly pledged to support our principles."

The forces of Senator Borah (R., Ind.) first of the Republicans to seek the presidential nomination by filing in Ohio, increased their pace in New York. The Idahoan's supporters, there named 10 candidates for the convention delegation and planned to name more.

Sturdy War On Democrats Wins Dickinson Presidential Mention

Sixth and last in a series on possibilities for the Republican presidential nomination.

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—The professed "life-long Republicanism" of Senator Lester J. Dickinson, of Iowa, has attracted increased attention of party leaders concerned with 1936 presidential possibilities.

A steady party drift toward a western candidate has been manifest. Some observers believe the political philosophy of the Iowan is more pleasing to eastern elements than the beliefs of others mentioned for the nomination.

Here is a western farm belt, whose Republicanism has never been touched by party irregularity. Eighteen years in house and senate have seen only one change in his party designation. For years the simple word "Republican" was sufficient in the official records of congress. Now Senator Dickinson styles himself "a life-long Republican."

Always a 'New Deal' Foe

In the Iowa senator who levered that most irregular of Iowa Republicans, Smith Wildman Brookhart, out of the senate, the party has available an outspoken foe of the "new deal" who never yielded to the notion that Roosevelt popularity made it politically inexpedient for even Republicans to attack him.

Senator Dickinson began firing at the Roosevelt administration even before it took office and has never relented.

Page after page of the Congressional Record has been filled with his attacks on almost every phase of administration policy or action. When AAA fell in the supreme court, Dickinson was among the first of his party to offer a substitute farm plan.

Iowa's record for sending to Washington Republican senators whose political philosophy was not on convention, party lines has been notable. Some of those Iowans, even before Brookhart's day, contributed largely to party cleavages.

The late Senator Cummins came to Washington as spokesman of an "Iowa idea," in his time hardly less revolutionary in Eastern Republican ears than "new deal" departures. It was Senator Kenyon of Iowa who headed a campaign expenditures investigation committee in 1920 which played a signal part in Republican convention happenings that year.

That background inclined some observers to believe Dickinson might have difficulty in retaining his senate seat. They credited his effort to build up toward reelection. Some of them saw him as an out-of-state speech-making to an a vice presidential nomination aspirant.

Seen as Possible Compromise

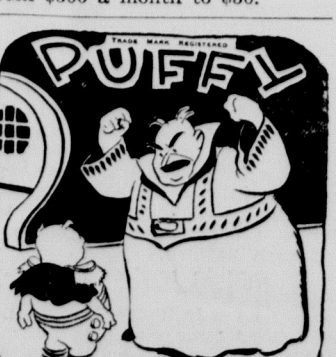

Like all others mentioned for national conventional honors, Dickinson retained his own counsel, but kept insistently plugging at his attack on the "new deal" and his demand for an adequate farm policy free of governmental regimentation, assuring broadened overseas markets.

His senate term is backed with a dozen years of service in the house. If no figure rises to dominate the convention from the start and a compromise between eastern and western wings must be reached, the Iowa senator cannot be counted out until the last ballot is taken.

HARGREAVES IN ALIMONY PLEA

LOS ANGELES, March 2. (AP)—Richard L. Hargreaves, convicted Beverly Hills banker, has petitioned for a reduction of alimony payments to his first wife, Mrs. Grace Bryan Hargreaves, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan.

Hargreaves, whose three-year prison sentence for alleged misapplication of bank funds was commuted to a year's jail term by President Roosevelt, stated he was virtually penniless. He requested his alimony obligation be reduced from $300 a month to $50.

The fat mayor splutters and wheedles in rage. "Young fellow," he mutters, "remember your age!" It's true I'm a couple of ounces too fat. But don't draw too hasty conclusions from THAT!

The anti-Democratic battle cry sounded by 1932 Republican Key-note Lester Jesse Dickinson has never stilled. It has helped win him consideration for the presidential nomination.

3 Show Care In Backing; Get Journal's Gasoline

Three more winners in The Journal's traffic safety contest today. Here they are: 6T 3311, E 23027 and 6T 2033.

Drivers of these three cars each won five gallons of gasoline today by pulling out of parking spaces with proper consideration for other drivers behind them.

Each day The Journal gives away three orders for five gallons of gasoline to auto drivers who execute some traffic maneuvers correctly. The contest is being staged in an effort to keep the public thinking about careful driving.

Drivers of the above cars won today, and will be able to get their gasoline orders by coming to The Journal office with their cars before 6 p. m. tomorrow.

Tomorrow the contest editor will watch for three cars which pass machines ahead of them properly, without cutting in or otherwise endangering other automobiles on the road.

Saturday's winners were drivers of cars numbered 7N 6694, 8X 3985 and 5X 1779. If drivers of these cars come to The Journal office before 6 p. m. today they will receive their orders for five gallons of gasoline apiece. These cars won because their headlights were adjusted so they lighted the road but did not glare.

April to be Marriage Month of Miss Katherine Barr and Wilbur Atherton

Tea in Family Home Tells 'The Day'

Modern All-White Motif Lends Chic Note to Setting of Party

A smartly-appointed tea given for some 40 of her friends from 4 to 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Barr, 1608 North Main street, served to announce the April wedding date set by Miss Katherine Barr and her fiancé, Wilbur Atherton of Los Angeles.

Gardenias went to the arriving guests, who found tiny designation cards in white envelopes attached to the fragrant blossoms. Miss Barr wore a flowered brown and green tea gown when she received her guests. Her mother, Mrs. O. H. Barr, was in deep wine cut velvet. Both wore gardenias.

Assisting in the receiving were Miss Barr's sister, Mrs. Horace Muckley, in blue crepe, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wilbur Barr, in white metallic bodice and black skirt. Mrs. Crawford Valle also helped.

Mesdames Lewis F. Moulton, J. S. Smart, Alex Brownridge and William H. Spurgeon alternated in presiding at the tea table, which was beautifully formal with white calla lily centerpiece, ivory tapers and lace.

Marian Martin Tops A Dashing Print With Shoulder Shirring

PATTERN 9667

How long since you've owned a frock with shirring? Then spring 1936 is a grand season in which to make yourself another, and here's a style that's readily in keeping with spring budgets, easy making, and you! It's a frock with only a minimum of work entailed, for pieces are large, quickly cut and joined. The neckline's simple, unadorned and finished off in no time. Shirring may be done by hand, or machine, and what a decorative note it lends the frock, so that a handful of buttons and a buckle are all it needs for trimming. Put a bit of dash into this wearable, all-occasion model by making it of gay printed silk or crepe, monotone synthetic, or sheer. Complete, diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9667 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric. Send 15 cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Be sure to send for our New Spring Pattern Book! You'll be happy as a lark over the way it simplifies your clothes problem! Dozens of easy-to-make, flattering designs—smart both for now and later in the season. News of spring fabrics and accessories. Special slenderizing designs. Clothes budget hints. Patterns for children, misses, adults. Price of book 15 cents. Book and a pattern together 25 cents. Send your order to The Journal, Pattern Department, 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana, Cal.

Mary Stoddard Ruthless Tide of Gossip Swirling at Door of Women Innocent of Any Indiscretion

By MARY STODDARD
If there's no smoke, it's a pretty sure sign there's no fire. And that goes for gossip—scandal—lies! If there's no foundation for these three "furries," they'll soon depart to the shadows from whence they came.

Scandal and gossip always originate in the twisted brains of those who haven't enough of their own business to attend to, or are too lazy to sweep their own doorsteps.

Simply keep your chin up and ignore it. In other words, attend strictly to your own business and let the scandal-mongers scandalize until they finally have to eat their own words.

A wife who writes us this morning suddenly finds herself in the whirlpool of scandal. As long as her husband, whom she loves, and her woman friend know there is no foundation for this vilification, she should worry.

The wife's letter follows:
Dear Miss Stoddard: A couple of years ago we met a couple and we have enjoyed their company immensely.

I simply adore the woman. They have been married about 10 years, and we have been married almost as long. I have kidded and joked with her husband just the same as I do with the rest of the men in our crowd. He means simply nothing to me more than my husband's friend and the husband of a woman I am proud to call my friend. I love my husband dearly and I believe all our friends know that.

This man has called on us at various times alone to leave a message on to see my husband. His wife always knew of these short calls. As a rule they were less than five minutes.

Here is my trouble: Gossip, that ruinous abstract, has been spread that I am trying to take her husband away from her. Where it started, I do not know. While I know her husband is a fine man, I surely wouldn't want this type for a husband.

Why does such gossip start when there has been no reason what-so-ever for it?

It has been said by someone that people are very sorry for his wife, that they think I am dreadful for trying to break up a home.

Please, please tell me what you would do. If I was guilty in any way I would feel differently about these horrid lies!

I am very thankful that his wife knows that they are lies and is with me in helping to learn their origin!

Thank you in advance.
S. E. S.

SANTA ANA GROUP VISITS BALDY CABIN

"Come on up to the mountains," suggested Florence and Crawford Nalle of West Fairview street to four of their friends yesterday—so off they buzzed to Crawford's Kappa Delta fraternity cabin of Pomona college days, at Camp Baldy. A steak bake highlighted the trip.

Their guests were Evelyn and Dr. G. Stanley Norton, Miss Ruth Owens and her fiancé, Ernest Stump.

CLUB TO MEET

Mayflower club members will be feted by Mrs. E. E. Smith at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in her home, 802 East Sixth street. Mrs. W. R. Ford is to assist with the hostess duties.

The Thinkers

Wherein women of the community express their views on topics of particular interest to women

Do you think it pays for a woman to sew?
Miss Julia Budlong: Sewing is one of the arts, and if you can get an artistic effect through the needle and design, it's worthwhile. However, in general, finished products are so cheap that it seems as though many women might find a more worthwhile and constructive use for their minds and time.

Mrs. J. H. Paterson: No, I don't think it does. The manufacturers can buy materials more cheaply than the individual and can make dresses cheaper than the average woman can. However, sometimes the woman who sews can purchase better materials.

THE STORY SO FAR

It is the eve of another attack on the Western front which has been reported captured in an erroneous computation the grim correction of which is to be devoted to the 1st and 131st Regiment of the French line. General Assolant, hoping to add another star to his decorations, has promoted the Pimple to his army command for "just this day." He knows it is a miniature Gibraltar, says Col. Dax, commanding the 131st. The French commandant, General Picard, is visiting the front line post. Privet Langlois, carrying the message to the 131st and the regimental carpenter, a corporal, busily making wooden crosses, and otherwise "the wind is up" that the dawn will be a deadly one. It is an evening in spring, presumably 1915.

"No papers, but it's going to be an attack all right."
"You're telling us! It's been official around here for hours."
"Yes, the general was through here . . ."
"And the priest . . ."
"And look at those extra packages of ammunition . . ."
"Yes, I know. The carpenter was making wooden crosses."
"Didn't they look like it?"
"He didn't make one for me."
"Don't say that. That's a sure way to get it."
"Stay here long enough, that's the sure way to get it."

CHAPTER XV

Sergeant Picard, the chaplain, had just left. Captain Sancy's No. 4 Company lines. The sight of the sergeant, but more particularly that of his stole, had had the effect of transforming the prevalent rumor of an attack into a certainty. A group of No. 4 Company men were talking.

"What the priests come around for you always know there's death in the wind."

"Well, there's nobody knows any more about such things than those two."

"What d'you mean by that?"

"You've done time in Cayenne, haven't you, Meyer? And Fernand, the Ferol in the Legion. They're not seminaries, those places."

"You've said it. You've got to be a man to go through the dry guillotine," said Meyer.

"And you've got to be two men to be in the Legion. Ferol never started again for their everlasting wrangle, a wrangle which always removed them from the general conversation and which quite often ended in blows."

"They're off again. Who gives a curse which is tougher, Algeria or the Legion?"

"You're right. This war's tough enough for me. I'd swap places right now with any convict or leonary, anywhere. . . ."

"That's because you're afraid of going over the top tomorrow, afraid of being killed."

"I don't get it. You see that?"

"Don't say that, it's bad luck."

"Bad luck, nothing. This war is bad luck."

"I know I won't be killed because I'm not afraid of it. It's always the ones who are afraid of it who get it. You see that?"

"That may be true. I don't know. But I'm afraid of it and they haven't got me yet. What's more, they're not going to. They haven't got my number."

"Don't say that, I tell you. That's a sure way to get it."

"If you stay here long enough, you'll see that. That's sure anyway."

"What time's zero hour?"

"Usual time. Dawn, I suppose."

"They say the general was down here today."

"There's millions of generals. This army is all generals and privates."

"Who's Assolant?"

"You tell him."

"He's the divisional mascot. A pet tiger. He can kill you with a look."

"Well, anyway, generals and chaplains always mean death. That's sure."

"If the colonials would ever shut up, I'd take a nap."

"Colonials is good. . . ."

Langlois got back to his section

Langlois? Did you print your own name while you had the chance?"

"I don't know and I don't care much. I'm not afraid of dying, only of getting killed."

"That's as clear as French mud."

"Well, which do you rather be done in by, a bayonet or a machine gun?"

"A machine gun, naturally."

"Naturally — that's just my point. They're both pieces of steel going into you. Only the machine gun is cleaner, quicker, less painful."

"What does that prove?"

"That proves that most of us are more afraid of getting hurt than of getting killed. Look at Bernard. He's in a panic when it comes to gas, but gas doesn't mean anything to me. He's seen photos of gas cases and it looks bad to him. Now that doesn't bother me a bit. But I hate like the devil to be without my tin hat."

"Now you tell me, apart from bayonets, what are you most afraid of?"

"High explosive."

"Me too."

"And me."

"Exactly. It's the same with me," said Langlois. "Because it can chew you up worse than anything else. Just what I'm trying to tell you. If you're really afraid of dying, you'd be living in a funk all your life because you know you've got to some day, any day. And besides, if it's death you're afraid of, why shouldn't you care about what it is that kills you? Why are you more afraid of shells than machine guns, or bayonets than shells?"

"You're too deep for me, professor. All I know is, nobody wants to die."

"You mean you don't want to."

"Yes, and you too."

"That's where you're wrong," said Langlois. "Personally, I'd rather like to. It's the only absolute thing in life. It has a mystery and perfection all its own. I have a strong curiosity about it. So strong at times that I've thought quite seriously of suicide."

"Well, hang on to your curiosity for a few hours more and it will be satisfied without the danger of losing your immortal soul."

"Don't invoke fate. It's bad luck."

"That bad luck idea gives me a pain," said Langlois, glad of the chance to express his ideas on this subject, "like 'self-preservation.' They take the instinct not to get hurt and call it the instinct of self-preservation. It's some instance of self-preservation all right, that makes people continue to live right under a volcano, in the earthquake and typhoon zones and the people talk reproduction. Why do people have to go round trying to make it a noble thing by saying they are reproducing their species?"

"Well, if they acted the way you talk, the race would die out."

"All right, and who'd be the worse off for that? Plenty of races have died out and nobody seems to be mourning them. Ours will too, and I can bet the animals will be delighted when the day comes."

"What about the unborn children?"

"What about them? I wish I was an unborn child this minute . . ."

"That's because we're going to attack tomorrow."

"D'you think you're doing anybody a favour by creating them out of nothing for the very doubtful joy of living a life of misery and pain in the world of men, the most savage of the predatory animals?"

"It's nature's law. I've got nothing to do with it."

"Take this war," Langlois continued. "Do you think our parents would have had any if they had foreseen the things they were sent to die for?"

"No, of course not."

"Probably. There have always been wars and there always will be. They're part of life, like disease, storms, death. There are lots worse things than war to my mind. For instance, sitting in some dub's office, making and counting somebody's money for him. It's a lot more than I can make war, but a louse can make money."

"It takes a fool to make war, if you judge by those who are making this one. This attack they're pushing us into now, it's just plain murder. Look at what the Boches did to the Tirailleurs. Anyway, war never does anything except waste the strongest."

"Well, that's something."

"It's not enough."

"It's never enough."

"I'm going to get some sleep," said Langlois.

"Good night. And don't over-sleep. You'll miss your chance to satisfy that curious curiosity of yours."

During the night working parties cut lanes through the French entanglements, using wire cutters. Four men were killed and nine wounded along this.

Johnston on Alcatraz

IN THE frankest and fullest statement that he has made yet, Warden Johnston of Alcatraz federal prison defends the harshness of the regime by reminding us that Alcatraz was established with the single aim of disciplining gangsters and other criminals who are too tough for the ordinary prison.

He admits that the discipline is severe but insists that all are treated alike and that there is neither brutality nor physical hardship.

Mr. Johnston stresses the determined purpose of the federal authorities that there shall be no publicity for the Al Capones and the Machine Gun Kellys. These men, he points out, thrived on publicity until their exploits became dramatized in the eyes of the moron part of the public and their evil deeds were emulated by vicious youngsters. Alcatraz has put a stop to that. It is the government's answer to a brazen challenge. And it is re-establishing a respect for law that had largely broken down during the bootleg era.

"Bathing alone will not preserve health," says a physician. Maybe so, Doc, but most bathtubs are only big enough for one at a time.

Triumph in Hard Work

A CURE for cancer may be found within three generations, according to Dr. Maude Slye, famous for her years of research work in Chicago. Dr. Slye believes that the solution may be found through exhaustive compilation and study of family medical records.

She herself has compiled thousands upon thousands of case histories of mice in her own laboratory. She can tell you exactly which mice in her group are susceptible to cancer and where such cancers will appear; it is reasonable to suppose that similar knowledge could be gained about human beings, if records were voluminous enough.

This simply illustrates the tremendous amount of unexciting detail drudgery which is a part of scientific research. For many years Dr. Slye has been keeping records of cages full of mice. Out of this monotonous routine may come, in the end, one of science's most amazing victories.

It must be tough on the beauty parlors since Dr. Returning Prosperity has started lifting faces.

Ah, Wilderness!

ONE is inclined to agree with Secretary Ickes that the primitive attractions in our state and national parks should be guarded zealously. The secretary feels that too many highways lace our parks today, with the result that the rugged, natural beauty of these spots has been diminished.

Roads, of course, are important for their value in bringing the parks to lovers of the great outdoors. But the road building should cease once the beauty centers of the parks have been made available.

Certainly the commercialization of these areas with attendant hot-dog stands and filling stations is no asset to natural outdoor splendor. We should retain inviolate some portions of our parks that are literally wildernesses with all their lure. The walking ought not to feaze a real tourist.

The average American family consists of 4.3 persons. One guess who the 3 is.

A Point of View

MORE and more I find it harder to endure the public misconception of the senate as a house of talkers only. Nowhere do men work harder or more devotedly than does the senatorial group to which Costigan belongs. Omniscience in small things, eloquence, outspokenness, silence, great administrative skill, the highest constructive talent, tolerance, passion against wrong—these are but a few of the qualities demanded of them, in addition to all the virtues.

Few men measure up to what is asked of them, for they are but frail humans after all. None the less, when the roll is called of those who have given their all, their best, without stint, without thought of self or their advancement, in order to serve their country, the name of Edward P. Costigan must stand very high. In his case public service still does receive public fidelity.—(Oswald Garrison Villard in February Forum.)

Other people get paid regularly, but traffic officers have to whistle for their money.

Character and Learning

A NEW YORK educator, Dr. George J. Ryan, makes the striking suggestion that candidates for teaching posts be rated on their character and personality rather than on mere book knowledge. The idea is well worth considering.

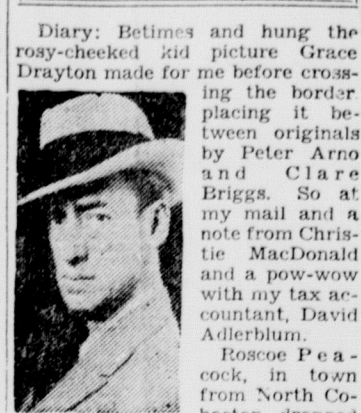

The ability to develop a sound outlook on life, and the capacity to adjust himself to the world in which he lives, are but two of the salient benefits a teacher with real character and personality can pass on to his students. A child is influenced more by one genuine personality than by hundreds of books.

The idea, of course, should not be carried to extremes. Books contribute the finest backgrounds to both personality and character. A happy combination of the two approaches the educational ideal.

Escopé Peacock, in town from North Cochocton, dropped by and gave a town medicine seller hawking his Ojibway Pain Killer. And Jeffrey Roche, Arthur's boy, in a minute, too. So out with my lady and put in to see Steve and Buff Cobb Brody and the youngsters.

The Lisle Bells to dinner and Lisle told of some James Thurber school day antics in Columbus, Ohio, and then driving along the docks, passing sleepers wrapped in newspapers. Then to call on Mrs. Sime Silverman and the Edward G. Robinsons and Regina Crewe had just left.

Chinatown's underground wickedness geysered into the headlines recently as a result of a vice crusade that jailed the "Mott Street Mob." The jostling area of crooked streets is still honey-combed with sunken hideaways that even the police cannot find. There are trap doors of the dime novel, innocent-looking shops that lead to rabbit-like warrens and a system of warnings that make it the most confusing district in the metropolis to escape the law.

Ginger Rogers was another cinema Cinderella to come back to New York, where she once lived in theatrical boarding houses, three flights up and all the way back, and queen it in an elaborate Waldorf suite with a secretary, French maid and caparisoned funkies at the outer door. Ten years ago, too, Miss Rogers was a ginghamed, freckled redhead swinging on the garden gate in front of an unpretentious cottage in a jay town in Texas. One of the small-time troopers, frequently fictionalized by Vina Delmar. Then that skyrocketing success that litters metropolitan hotel lobbies with autograph seekers.

More than one theatrical producer is basting for a play in which to star Gloria Swanson in a mother role. Her love for children has long been an outstanding emotion in real life, although she never had an opportunity of so expressing herself on the screen. Her devotion to her own children, along with that boy she adopted, has been one of the Hollywood sagas. Those who know say she has a neat sense of values for the spoken drama—but the problem has been to find a play that may give an outlet for a long hidden talent.

The call of the South seas is being heeded by the majority of those "tired of it all and longing to get away from the mad swirl" more insistently than ever. Fifteen Greenwich Villagers departed in a month. Somerset Maugham touched off the begins to tropical isles by the novelization and filming of "Mutiny on the Bounty," and the serial "The Hurricane." The result in Tahiti has been the usual one. Prices have become prohibitive for those seeking lower living and established expatriates have pulled up stakes. Newcomers stand for the gyping until the next boat shoves off. Hotel rooms that once rented for 10 francs, about 50 cents a day, are now $5 a day.

Tony Canzoneri has sailed $250,000 in annuities. . . . Lily Pons' last name is pronounced "pones." . . . Ben Ames Williams is one of the favorite American writers in Wales. . . . Col. Sherman Billingsley is reputedly the wealthiest night club owner with a million.

One of those bar girls, the sort if you don't see in one place you will in another, was nuzzling a big gobletted whiff of brandy and looking hopefully at the thin trickle of night stragglers. The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, March 2.—More than 150 suits seeking to snare part of the one billion dollars of processing taxes have been filed in federal courts throughout the country. Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering estimates that 1,500,000 suits would be required to cover the disputed billion. The most musical sounding name on the government roster is that of Golden W. Bell, an assistant solicitor general in the justice department.

Donald R. Richberg, one-time "assistant president," has resumed the practice of rail labor law. He has been employed by the railroad brotherhoods, whom he represented before becoming a government official, to formulate legislation to protect rail workers from loss of jobs through carrier consolidation. . . . A reminder of the "horse-and-buggy" era that stood a few rods from the Reconstruction Finance corporation office has succumbed to the machine age. An adjacent ivory stable has been replaced by a garage. . . . If Al Smith makes good his threat to "take a walk" he will be following an old Democratic precedent. As far back as 1848 a walk-out occurred in a Democratic convention in New York, when two factions, the so-called Barnburners and Hunkers, became embroiled in a bitter fight over control of the state presidential delegation. The convention voted to divide the delegation between the two groups, whereupon the Barnburners "took a walk."

Friends of Mrs. Huey Long are advising her to keep her 18-year-old daughter, Rose, from talking too much.

SENATOR NORRIS found a way he can listen to senate debate and finish his cigar at the same time. He sits in the lobby doorway, just off the floor, holds the door open with his foot, and puffs away. . . . Before the next session of congress convenes, there will be additional elevators installed to carry visitors to senate galleries. . . . Norris, TVA's model town, is proposing to hire a community dentist, on salary, to take care of TVA teeth. . . . Senator Pittman thought he had lost a silver plaque valued at $800. It is an ornate silver disk, replica of the Aztec calendar, given to the ever senior by E. Plutarco Calles of Mexico. It disappeared when Pittman asked to have it polished by his messenger. Pittman led a frantic search, found it in a drawer of his foreign relations committee table.

School-boy temptation overcame Vice President Garner of Texas the other day when he strolled past Senator Sheppard of Texas on the senate floor. He put his hands in Sheppard's grey hair and ruffled it.

VICE-PRESIDENT It seems that almost half the Republican Presidential aspirants would like to have Jimmy Wadsworth of New York as vice-presidential running mate. Close friends of Wadsworth say he has received overtures from the camps of Governor Landon, Col. Frank Knox and Senator Arthur Vandenberg. . . . Attorney General Cummings has the most lavish and ornate office in Washington, but does no work in it. He uses a small study just behind it. "Trying to work in that big room," says Cummings, "is like having a desk in Union station." . . . One of the proudest claims of Wyoming's Democratic Sen. Jos. C. O'Mahoney is that he studied history and law under Prof. Charles A. Beard, world-famous historian and scholar. Treasury records show that some $300,000,000 in gold coins are still unreturned. Much of it is believed to be abroad and much has been irrevocably lost. . . . Commenting on the claim by a big utility executive belittling the importance of the supreme court's TVA decision, Senator William E. Borah declared: "The scope of that ruling is much broader than is generally realized. Those who say otherwise are whistling in the dark."

Women have nothing on Congressman John S. McGowan, California post-launderer, when it comes to changing their minds. In December he announced he was through with politics. A month later he called Dr. Townsend's third party movement a "tragic mistake." Last week he said he would run on that ticket for President.

BILBO Sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic national convention at Philadelphia will be broad-shouldered Col. Edwin A. Threat of larger potato plantings this year, before federal regulation takes hold, is seen by agriculture officials in the fact that in Baldwin county, Ala., 150 acres of seed are being planted as against 124 last season. . . . It was a keen debate in the senate commerce committee when polemical Senator Vandenberg of Michigan attacked the Florida ship canal project. Opposing him was Florida's H. H. Buckman, who, in addition to being an engineer, was captain of Harvard's debate team in 1908.

The Man Bilbo made history for himself this week. He rose and spoke two full sentences, among them: "I was paired in voting." Longest previous remarks of the senator from Mississippi were "Aye," "No," or "Here."

LABOR CAMPAIGNER HEAD of the Democratic labor committee in this years campaign will be Daniel Tobin, president of the teamsters' union and a power in the A. F. of L. Tobin headed the Roosevelt labor group in 1932 and was an active candidate for secretary of labor. When Miss Perkins got the job he went into a sulk, but has got over it. . . . Representative Henry Ellenbogen returns to his home-town, Pittsburgh, each week-end solely to make a 15-minute radio address on the week's events in congress. Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson is wondering how he can put an end to being confused with Robert Jackson, lawyer-lobbyist and former Democratic national committeeman from New Hampshire. . . . Two negroes are relatives but are constantly getting each other's mail, telephones and telegrams. Recently, a Washington newspaper printed a picture of the Justice Department Jackson with a story about Lawyer Jackson receiving a large fee from a public utility.

What Other Editors Say

THE SAME OLD HOKUM

(San Luis Obispo Press-Telegram)

The public utterances of convicted criminals are in a class by themselves. For pure nonsense, there's nothing to beat them. "Crime doesn't pay" is the favorite. It has become a classic, known to every American old enough to listen, and echoed through newspaper, newsreel and radio whenever a good trial comes up. The loser goes off to prison, his last words to the press are: "Crime doesn't pay." He doesn't believe it, and it's no one thinks he believes it, but it's good for a last wheeze.

We read not long ago about a grizzled old boy popping off with "crime doesn't pay" just as he was ready to enter prison for the eighth time. That incident should prove our point beyond all doubt. If he hadn't decided after the first seven terms that crime doesn't pay, he wouldn't be convinced simply by the imminence of an eighth. He didn't believe what he said. He just said what was expected of him.

What to do about all this, we are not sure. We might try to put crime on something besides a paying basis. "Crime doesn't satisfy," or "Crime doesn't interest me," or something like that might be more of a deterrent than the present bromide.

We recommend further study of the situation to the WPA. While putting citizens out on other strange and sundry projects, it might as well set someone to work finding out what crime doesn't do. We're tired of hearing crime doesn't pay.

THE SUPER-LEGISLATURE

(Los Angeles Times)

Nebraska had high hopes a couple of years ago of getting an expert, non-partisan body of high-minded citizens to run its affairs by adopting the expedient of a one-house legislature, containing only forty-three members. But the filings of candidates for nominations disclosed the same old line-up of cheap politicians seeking the offices. Seventy of the 119 candidates are members or former members of the legislature, and it is conceded that most of the other 49 are no great shakes.

Several schemes for getting better candidates are being proposed, but there seems no machinery for making them work. It is feared that, freed of party restrictions, the new legislature will not function even as well as the old one.

Such disappointments commonly result when the machinery of government gets more emphasis than the men who run it. Capitalism, the country folk, make the poorest system of government work well; but it is impossible to provide good government automatically.

NO USE FOR INDIGENTS

(Burlington Daily Facet)

Now we are asked that the Los Angeles plan for polling the rest of California to keep out indigents was not a bright idea originating in the angel city. The Romans used to do it, and that precedent, possibly, Los Angeles city police feel justified in extension of their duties into other counties. Dr. Arthur B. McKinlay, University of California at Los Angeles, discloses for our benefit a proclamation issued by Emperor Caracalla in the year 215 A. D., in Alexandria:

"Any Egyptian in Alexandria, especially the country folk who have come in from other places, are to be driven out of the city by all possible means. By their numbers and their uselessness they are disturbing the city. Sightseers and men on business are not to be enjoined, but those who flee from their own districts are to be forbidden."

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

Foul Suspicion Breeds Anew the Political Dickerings

EUROPE is rushing back to the old system of alliances and balance-of-power. Secret treaties, the curse of European diplomacy, are cropping up thick and fast. The covenant of the League of Nations directly forbids such intrigues and back-stage maneuvers. But where diplomats are there one expects the foul brood of suspicion and dickerings for political advantage.

A balance-of-power is always an uncertain and unstable condition. It is based on fear and hatreds. The parties to the agreement distrust one another, as well as every power outside. There may be honor among thieves, but there is mighty little honor or confidence among nations driven together by mutual fears, alarms and desire for unholy gain.

Opposing groups of powers resemble very much the line-up before the World war. Britain, France and Russia form an entente as they did 30 years ago. Mittel Europa, Germany, Austria, and Italy, are drawing together as they did 50 years ago. Only Japan is a new factor in the picture, and a shrewd Austria, more of a burden than a help in a crisis. And when the wind comes over the mountain you get a disagreeable day in Santa Ana. This elemental phenomena has been making periodical calls on this section for many years, but no one seems willing to take the responsibility of extending the invitation. From the visible point of view the opinion is that a lot of damage results, but those who delve in scientific research on the wind has its virtue in that germs are blown over the ocean area and destroyed. It's all right with me if they refuse the bugs stop-over privileges. Lot of damage has been done before they got to the ocean.

E. P. Nickey is coming in one of these days to tell me in detail about the death of an umbrella tree he planted some 40 years ago at the corner of his lot on Bush and Sixth street. That tree was a member of the family. E. P. was as faithful as a father to a child—more faithful, than many of the present day fathers. He watched it grow and enjoyed its shady comfort. Saw it fade before the ceaseless onslaught of time, called the surgeon on the time, called the surgeon on the time, called the surgeon on the time, and was present when the tree morticians called for the corpse. Somehow or other I have an impression that E. P. has the same love of a tree as Joyce Kilmer.
